SCOTLAND.

Edinburgh, May 23.

Hursday 11 o'Clock the Assembly met, and a Motion was made, That Parties concerned in Dr. Wishart's Process, should be restrained from reading any more Papers relative thereto, because the Articles of Error charged against him, being stated in Opposition to our Standards, the Assembly could judge by comparing the Passages of his Sermons with the Paragraphs of the Confession they were said to contradict, and the Parties might speak viva voce to each. But the Appellants declared, if the Assembly proceeded in that Manner, they would say no more on the Subject. The Assembly went upon the Consideration of the first Article of Charge, viz. That Dr. Wishart confines the Power of the Magistrate to the punishing only of Crimes that disturb Society, or are Matter of Wrong and wicked Lewdness; whereas the Confession of Faith extends the Magistrates Power to the punishing of Blasphemy, Heresies, Breach of Sabbath, and other Sins against the first Table of the Law; this was founded on a Passage in the Doctor's Sermon before the Society for Reformation of Manners, wherein speaking by Way of Advice, he tells them, That tho' there are other Methods to be used for reclaiming our Neighbours, as Instruction, Persuasion, and the Influence of a good Example, yet the Method of punishing Offenders is to be confined to such Crimes of the Vicious, as are hurtful to others about them, or disturb the Peace of Human Society: This was alledged to contradict the Confession of Faith, Chap. 23. §. 3. and Chap. 20. §. 4. In support of this Article it was urged, That if the Doctor's Words had any Meaning, they could only be taken as confining the Method of punishing Offenders to the Sins against the second Table of the Law; he seem'd to refuse the Magistrate should do any Thing at all for the Glory of God, which, as it was the chief End of our Actions, so, in all especial Manner, the Design of the Magistrate in punishing Offenders; Acts of Parliament, the Practice of our Princes, the Language of the Reformers, all join to prove this: Our Parliaments have made severe Laws against Blasphemy; the glorious King William, on an Address of the House of Commons, had ordered the Laws to be strictly put in Execution against the Authors of heretical Pamphlets; and the great Melanthon, and other Reformers, had ascribed a Power to the Magistrate to punish Crimes against the first Table, as well as against the second Table of the Law; and the same was the View of our Confession, as was evident from the Writings of those that had assisted in compiling it: The Doctor's Words were inconsistent with the Opinions of those great Men, and he seemed to join those who were endeavouring to ruin the very Foundations of Christianity. But to this it was replied, That no Construction can be put on the Doctor's Words, he was not in that Discourse speaking to Magistrates, neither speaks he any thing against extending the Power of Magistrates to the punishing of Blasphemies, Heresies, Breach of Sabbath, &c. so it is not fair to fix any such Construction on his Words, unless he had asserted, which he never does, That Men cannot, in the Commission of such abominable Sins, be guilty of any Matter of Wrong or wicked Lewdness, by which their Neighbours are injured, their natural or civil Right invaded, or the Peace of human Society disturbed, for if they are, he expressly asserts, That the governing Powers in civil Society have a Right, and it is their Duty, to punish such Offences; and as the Doctor has not confined the Magistrate's Power, so, if he had, where is the Opposition to the Confession of Faith's extending it to Blasphemies, Heresies, Breach of Sabbath, and other abominable Sins against the first Table of the Law, unless it could be alledged, that either the Confession or he had asserted that such abominable Sins are not Crimes hurtful to our Neighbours, nor disturbing the Peace of human Society? If this be the Case, the Magistrate is to punish, and we are not to dip into Distinctions, and consider his Ends in punishing; the Glory of God, and the Good of Society are inseparable, and it is in vain to offer Distinctions to put them asunder; but if this Principle were push'd according to what it might be, it would issue in the Doctrine of Nonresistance and passive Obedience; was the Magistrate a Pagan or an Idolater, by that Principle he behaved to punish all that would not comply with his Heathenish Practices: And further, in the first Times of Christianity, the Apologists plead nothing in their Defence, but that they don't disturb the Peace of the Empire, and this they urge, as giving them a Right to the same Protection of other good Subjects; at the Reformation the same was pleaded; and the King of France gives it as his Reasons for the Toleration he granted to the Protestants; in Scotland we followed the same Principles, Mr. Knox's History might be looked into, and the Thing would appear in a glaring Light, and even the Church of Scotland had not thought proper to determine in the Affair, for Anno 1647, when the contrary of the Propositions charged on the Doctor came under their Notice, they would not approve them, but referred them to further Consideration, as may be seen from the Proceedings of that Assembly; and it was unjust to urge from the Jewish Law that Passage against Blasphemers, for it was to be considered, that the Almighty Governor of the Universe was in a particular Manner Governor of the Israelites, they had no other King, he had taken the Rule of them himself, and to speak against him, was acting against their lawful Governor, and High Treason in the State; if it were to be pushed, the Consequences of some of these Precepts we would all refuse, for nothing is more strictly enjoined, than that he who entices to Idolatry, be he never so dear a Relation, should be brought forth and put to Death; yet were any of our Wives or Children endeavouring to pervert or entice us to Romish Idolatry, we should scruple to bring them forth and have them put to Death. After long Reasoning on the Affair, the Doctor was pleased to declare his Adherence to the Confession of Faith; and having read the Passages which he was said to contradict, and assented to them, the Assembly unanimously found the first Article not proven.

The Royal BEAUTIFYING FLUID.

SO exceedingly valued by Ladies of Quality and all who have used it, for its transcendent Excellency in Beautifying the Face, Neck, and Hands to the most exquisite Perfection possible, is to be had only at Mr. Radford's Toyshop at the Rose and Crown against St. Clement's Church-yard in the Strand.

It gives an inexpressible fine Air to the Features of the Face on the Spot, and a surprising Handsomeness to the Neck and Hands, which it immediately makes exceedingly smooth, fine, and delicately white.

Nothing in the World can sooner or more certainly take away all disagreeable Redness, Spots, Pimples, Heats, Roughness, Morpheus, Worms in the Face, Marks of the Small Pox, Sun-burn, or any other Discoloring, nor remove all Wrinkles so perfectly; for it quickly makes the Skin become so incomparably fine, clear, plump, soft, and beautifully fair, as to cause Admiration in the Beholders.

It really gives a most engaging resplendent Brightness to the whole Countenance, and causes sparkling Life, Spirit, a juvenile Bloom to reign in every Feature, and yet is nothing of Paint, but far exceeds it, by its bringing the Skin, whether of the Face, Neck, or Hands, and tho' brown, red or rough, to a natural, youthful Fairness, Smoothness, and most charming Delicacy, which Paint only faintly imitates; neither is this ROYAL BEAUTIFYER prepared from the least Particle of Mercury, or any Thing Metaline, but is perfectly harmless and may be given inwardly even to Children. It has also a pleasant Scent, will not soil the finest Lawn, and is very agreeable to use.

But these its admirable Properties, by which it vastly exceeds any Thing whatever for the like Purpose, have occasioned many to imitate it under various other Names, beware therefore of such Impositions, the true ROYAL BEAUTIFYING FLUID, that has given such universal Satisfaction to so many Ladies of Distinction, being only to be had at Mr. Radford's Toyshop above mentioned at 3 s. 6 d. a Bottle with Directions, and no where else in England.
